

Using Adverbs to Express Place

1. Circle the adverbs of time.

quickly

slow

tonight

this morning immediately

now

soon

loudly

VF

4. Tick the box to show where the adverb, later, could best fit in the sentence below.

I am very excited for my new computer being delivered

Prove it.

R

2. Which adverbs of time will complete the sentences below?

now

later

yesterday

A. I need to get ready to go to school _____.

B. As we are in a rush, we need to set off _____.

VF

5. Write two sentences using two of the adverbs below.

already before

then

A

3. Tick the sentences that include an adverb of time.

A. We saw some huge gorillas at the zoo today.

B. At the zoo, the kangaroos bounced all around us.

C. We got to feed meerkats but we had to wash our hands after.

VF

6. Sarah has written a sentence including an adverb of time. Has she used the correct adverb of time?

I will go to my grandma's house yesterday.

Explain why or why not.

R

Using Adverbs to Express Place

1. tonight, this morning, immediately, now, soon
2. A. I need to get ready to go to school later.
B. As we are in a rush, we need to set off now.
3. A and C
4. The tick should be in the final box. The sentence should read 'I am very excited for my new computer being delivered later.' Putting 'later' in the other positions will not make sense as it needs to modify the verb 'delivered'.
5. Various answers, for example: I had washed up already. You will have to leave then.
6. Sarah has used the adverb or time incorrectly. She has used the adverb 'yesterday' which gives more information about events that have already happened. She has written the sentence about something that will happen in the future. She should have used the adverb 'tomorrow'. Her sentence could be 'I will go to my grandma's house tomorrow'.