

Using Apostrophes for Plural Possession

1. Rewrite the sentences so that the underlined words are contracted.

A. She did not want to do her homework.

B. He would do well on his project if he worked harder.

C. They have chosen to go to the cinema for their treat.

VF

4. True or false? The apostrophe has been used correctly in the sentence below.

We should'nt go in there because it is dangerous.

Explain your answer.

R

2. Circle the words that use an apostrophe to show possession.

Emma's

you're cat's

he's it's king's

VF

5. Write the words below as a contraction.

they are

Use the contraction you have made and the information below to write a sentence using apostrophes correctly.

the keys belonging to mum

A

3. Which sentence correctly uses an apostrophe to show possession?

A. The bird's sat in the nest.

B. The bird's nest had three eggs inside it.

C. The bird's flew back to their nest.

VF

6. Write a sentence that includes the features below.

- An apostrophe for singular possession.
- Two different contractions.

A

Using Apostrophes for Plural Possession

1. A. She didn't want to do her homework.
B. He'd do well on his project if he worked harder.
C. They've chosen to go to the cinema for their treat.
2. Emma's, cat's and king's
3. B
4. It is false because the apostrophe should be used to represent the missing letter. Therefore, the apostrophe should be between the 'n' and the 't' to represent the missing letter 'o' (shouldn't).
5. Various answers, for example: They're looking for mum's keys.
6. Various answers, for example: She's visiting her auntie's house because it's her birthday.